Ir seems that the Democrats of Berkeley county are not dwelling together in harmony. The Independent fever seems to have struck the county, and a good many, while pretending to be good Democrats, are anxious to form a coalition with the Republicans. Such a state of affairs is to be regretted, and it is to be hoped that the differences may be amicably settled.

AT a meeting of a good number of the survivors of the famous "Wallace House" last winter it was decided to hold a reunion of the survivors on the 10th of Novomber. It is expected that most of the members will be present at the reunion, and the exciting times of '76 again refreshed in their memories by its discussion. Such a reunion, besides being a pleasant gathering for the members from all parts of the State, will doubtless have a good effect upon the public mind.

DURHAM, N. C., is another Southern fown which has had phenomenal growth. In 1870 its population was only 250; now it has a population of 6,500, with two or three thousand just the press. A LEADING exchange says Harvard University has made all the arrangements for celebrating her 250th anniversary on November 6. Two days are set apart for the festivities marked out. The opening day, November 6, will be devoted to sculling races, foot ball, literary exercises, with an oration and an ode. At 8 o'clock in the evening a torchlight procession will parade through the principal streets of Cambridge. The seniors will parade in togas and mortar boards; the juniors will appear in the uniform of the Continental soldier of 1776; the gallant sophomores will deck themselves out in the costume worn by a dandy of the year 1825, and the freshmen will clothe themselves in the quiet uniform of the Federal soldier of 1861. The law school will be represented by a delegation of about 100 men clad in black gowns and white wigs. A grand display of fireworks will follow. On Sunday, the anniversary proper, there wiil be appropriate religious exercises and on Monday the graduates will celebrate with exercises in Sanders' Theatre, and an alumni dinner, which is expected to surpass any commencement dinner, both in size and interest.

For 1879 the estimated value of all farm productions sold, consumed or on hand was placed at $2,213,402,564, or more than five times the value of the minerals produced in 1885. The value of manufactured products for the same year was $1,018,106,616, or nearly two and a half times as great as the mineral product of last year. A comparison of the values of the mineral and mannfactured products would, however, be misleading at any time, as the pig-iron and some other important items would appear in both lists. It would be interesting to compare the value of the mineral products of this country with those of the other nations of the earth if reliable statistics were at hand. In the absence of these it may be taken for granted that the United States leads any of them in the total value of its annual mineral output, but how known in this locality, speaks in such unqualified praise, who can question the sterling character of Calisaya?

The broad statement was made by Senator Butler that the European our counters. laborer, under normal conditions, is happy and contented. It is true that he receives less for his labor than is paid in America, but the money in Europe goes a good deal farther. Senator Butler visited the tenements of the laboring people and found them clean and comfortable. The people were dressed well, and were as healthy to teachers was-to males, $24.94; to a set as he ever saw. This is a heavy blow, assuredly, to those who insist that the laborers of Europe are all paupers, and that they are made so by free trade or low tariffs. On the subject of the tariff, Senator Butler made some pregnant remarks. There are only two classes, he said, who want high tariff, and these are the large exporters in Europe and the manufacturers at home. One of the worst abuses is that of under valuation. Like smnggling it is almost a necessary consequence of exorbitant import duties. Systematically in Europe the exporters invoice their goods at from five to thirty per cent. below the market value, and by these means cheat both the Government and the consumer. The Government loses the full duty which the law imposes. and the consumer buys the imported article on the basis of its actual cost, and not of the reduced invoice price. The light will shine out after a time. Tariff revision will surely come, and Mr. Dibble announced the opinion objection to the present tariff, however, was based upon the fact that it produces a surplus in the treasury rather than upon its protective features. The surplus is but one of the incidental disadvantages of our tariff system. It can be disposed of by spending it. It can be returned to the people through appropriations for public improvements. The surplus is not the real difficulty. What we cannot escape, or in any way avoid, is the crushing taxation, amounting to ever forty cents on the dollar, on nearly article that we wear, or use, or consume. It is not a question of a surplus of fifty million dollars, but of fleecing the people of the whole country to the tune of hundreds of millions

We are glad indeed to see the tariff touched upon so frequently in discussions in South Carolina, and wish most heartily that the young Democracy of the State, those who will in a 1 1885. short time be in the lead in the management of public affairs, would devote themselves to the study of the subject, and so help to give their people far greater relief and far more hope than can come from any movement which is aimed at State legislation, and State policy alone.

"The Lee Book." Memoirs of Robert E. Lee, by General A. L.

A full history of his military service and campaigns, written by General Long, from data collected while a member of the personal staff of General Lee, and from letters and material contributed by the Lee family. Conmended by the Governors of Virginia and North Carolina and approved by the Southern delegations in Congress. His private, domestic and personal history, from information heretofore unpublished, furnished by personal friends, companions in arms and leading men of the South, colleted and edited with the assistance of General Marcus J Wright. One of the principal objects of the work is to provide funds for the support of the Confederate Soldiers' Home at Richmond, Va. This deserving charity alone should be sufficient to win for it the nearty support of every patriotic heart. It is carefully prepared by his friends. It recounts his noble deeds.

It contains his own words. It contributes to a noble charity. It is cordially approved by General Custis Lee as the representative of the
